

Private Invitation

Our aim is to educate ourselves and our community which is why, every month, we organise a small private networking program where we introduce entrepreneurs, innovators, investors and senior executives to each other and to new educational ideas, methodologies and solutions.

Our next educational program is on Feb 28th and, in this program, we have a coach that will teach us how we can become the best version of ourselves at both work and in our private lives.

He has already coached well known German executives and the process of his work is quite unique. He has 2.5 days of one-to-one sessions with a client where he gathers all of the information he needs via questions and conversations. Based on this information, he is able to tell his clients what the two most important feelings his clients need in order to recharge their energy levels. He thinks people go on holiday, spend a lot of money and time and they come back but are still tired.

They think they need another holiday! He believes they don't understand or know themselves. The human being is charging energy based on feelings, and when you discover the two feelings that make you feel the best then you can create these feelings for yourself all the time so that you have continuous high energy at work.

He has discovered that most people don't know the different styles, shapes and nuances of feelings. Most of us mix feelings. Like the feeling of being needed, or the feeling of being respected for the knowledge that we have are not exactly the same. Or to have fun at what we do is not exactly the same as enjoying our work. He educates his clients and allows them to tune in to the core feelings that make them work best. He believes after knowing the two feelings, one is able to pay attention and create the feelings in their work environment or, to choose a work that allows for them.

After spending 2.5 days in a hotel seminar he is able to ensure that his clients will never face a burnout or being stuck in work that does not make him or her their best version. As usual we will also have a start-up with a unique idea. We don't provide any names before the conference and you can only join if you receive an invitation from us or you are a part of our community.

The venue will be sent to registered guests only. In order to register, visit the following page:

<http://www.swissbankingadvisory.ch/Contact/>